THE T. - The army correspondents of the Cincinnati papers have written most intere ting and graphic descriptions of the hattles fought by our soldiers in eastern Kentucky, but they are alli cted with a chronic disposition to dotract from the loyalty of the Union men lu that region. One of these excellent writers, said to he the Rev. Mr. Gaddis, chaplain of the 2d Ohio, in his recent correspondence for the Commercial, while complimenting Gen. Nelson lu most deserved terms, complains that the Union men of Eastern Kentucky did not sympathize with him sufficiently, and asserts that there are many professional Union men there, hat when it comes to taking a positive stand, it is "Good Lord or good devil" that, but if the secosh triumph they are on that side. "True," he says, "we found many good friends, but they were only the exceptions." We cannot better do our duty towards exonerating our friends in that quarter of the State than hy

by the Maysville Engle. That paper says:

"The charges against the Union men of Eastorn Kentucky are most urjust and entirely untrue. Kentucky already has her foll quota in the camp and in the field, although recruiting only commonced in the State shout ten wasks ago, and this under the many disadvantages arising from the fact that nearly one third of the State is within the Confederate lines and recruiting in such counties thus rendered exceedingly ilifficult. The Ninth Congressional District tot only gave the largest Union vote of any in the State, but it has nobly responded to the call to arms. It has now full thirty-five hundred men with food and clothing; but, though suffering intensely, our hrave boys have borne up under hardships without a murmur, and their outhers assement and zeal have continued unchilled by the neglect of the Government. They have endured their full abare of the fatigues of the campaign uncomploiningly, and when exposed to the fire of the enemy, as they have been most liberally, all undrilled and hadly equipped os they were, they proved to the satisfaction of all that Kontneky eral thing oxhibited any want of sympathy with the cause. On the contrary, we know that theirs has been a most generous ardor, and that General Nelson has been assisted by them to the extent of their ahility. We know not how much was expected of them, but it is a fact that all classes of Union mer, especially the husiness men of Mayaville, have done their utmost to aid General Nelson in the organization of his hrigade and in the vigorous prosecution of the campaign. The assertion that the misses of the Union men of the Ninth District are ready to turn accessionists if the Confederates chall obtain the upper hand, is inexcusable in one who has withressed their sufferings in the mountains for the Union scale; who has soen whole neighborhoods depopulated by families fleeling from secession tyranny, and who has known men to leave their children and wives at this mercy of the marcaders to volunteer in the ranks of the nation or to live in the words and caves, when safety might have been assured by a caves, when safety might have been assured by a caves, when safety might have been assured by a the past year.

Missus. Editors: The report of Gon. Patterson's speech, which appeared in the Journal on Thursday, furnishes the first explanation which I have seen of the "military necessity" that caused the battle of Manages to be fought on Sunday. The public will dendthes be much obliged to the General for the facts which he has given, but not satisfied without inferring the existence of others which he has not wisen. His column was so near to Johnson that he could have brought on a battle at any time. He says the orders to him from headquarters, on the 13th of July, were: "If not strong enough to best the enemy, early rext week, make demonstrations so as to defain him in the valley of Winheater."

Winchester.
Further on he says: On the 18th (Thursday) at half past one in the morning, he telegraphed Gen. Scott the condition of the enemy! force and of his own, and closed the despaten by asking.
Shall I attack? He dies not say what despatch he cent on Friday, the 19th. General Scott and M. D. well were we ching chosen with that Johnson had unrehed with 35,000 Confederate troeps and a large artillary free in a south-easterly direction. He immediately talegraphed the information to Gen. Scott and knew that he received it the same day.

It thus appears, from General P.'s own words, that this information on Saturday was the first Generals Scott and McDowell could have had of the approach of Johnson's farce. And did they not naturally conclude that, as he could not reach Manassas in one day, he might possibly reach it on Monday? If so, we see the apparent "military necessity" for the Sunday battle.

on Monday? If so, we see the apparent "military necessity" for the Sunday battle.

Now it is well understood that Johnson did so lually leave Winchester with his force on Thursday, and had been making preparations two or three days before by hauling cars over the turnpike to the Manussas Gip Ruitreal. And it is also well known that Gen. Sielbowell's army fill accomplish on Sunday all that he and his tiener als ever expected it to see mplish. Bat when i had beaten one army, an ther was brought up, for which no provision had been made, riad Gen. Patterson's information of Saturday heen given on Thursday, when it eight to have been, or even on Friday, then it is probable the battle would not have been fought on Sunday. Cannot the public be certainly informed whether or not the public be certainly informed whether or n Gen. Patterson did send any disputch on Fritz and, if he dd, what it was ? HAMPDEN. Sugleyville, Nov. 28, 1861.

MCLULLAN AND THE ARMY. — It is very pleasant to see the confidence the whole runy has in McClel'an. At this moment he reigns, or, if he chose, absolutely distates, and I face, if the truth was known, the President and Cabinst are very secondary. He holds in his band six him dred thousand men! What was responsibility! You he is, all say, fully equal to it, and, botter yul, there is no danger of his amoning this power. His will is absolute here; he his hrought this huge muss of mon into order; he directs what they shall do from the most minute p into of etiquate or dress up to the great novements this re to give us certain sneeds. That thurn will be an advance, and short! I are absolutely car laid, — if the confidence is not a first of the confidence in the confidence in the confidence is a solution of the confidence in the confidence is a solution of the confidence in the confidence is a solution of the confidence in the confidence is a solution of the confidence in the confidence is a solution of the confidence in the confidence is a solution of the confidence in the confidence is a solution of the confidence in the confidence is a solution of the confidence in the confidence is a solution of the confidence in the confidence is a solution of the confidence in the confid

Capiron,-It Know at the artist, Rogers, was commissioned some years ogo hy our Gov erament to model and have cast in brouze felding doors for the Capitel. The doors have just need cast at Munich, and an English writer who has seen them gives the following description of the designs which ornament them:

the designs which ornament them:

The bronze doors intended for the Capitol at Washington, designed and modeled of Rome, by the American artisl, Rogers, have lately been any view at the Royal Foundry, where they were vist. The workmanship, as is always the crow with whatover emanates from the Manich foundry, is damirable. There is a sharpnes in the lines, and a finish in the minutest detail, which are in the highest degree creditable. Of the doors themselves it is not easy to convey an all quote idea by a mere dicer prior; for an enumeration of all that is represented might induce the belief that there was a crowding of objects, and that the allotted space was overfilled; and this is not the case. Each door—he whole forme a folding door—is divided into four compartments or panels. Thus, within a somi-circular space shove, which has the breadth of both the doors tegether, there are nine divisions, in each of which an important moment of Columbus's life is represented. The figures stand cut in fall relief, and some of portant moment of Columbus's life is represented.

The figures stand cut in full relief, and some of the groups are emineutly successful. The crowning event of the discoverer's cureor occupies the commanding spot over the top of the doors. Here Columbus, standing an a mound forms the central figure. He has just landed from a heat, and with the standard of Arragon and Castile planted on the new stil, and with eword upraised in his right hand, he takes possession of the land in the name of his sovereiges. Some heatmen are still in the skiff, others are kneeling on the shore, while a group of Indians, peoping from behind a tree on the opposite sids, lock on in wondering astenishment. In one compartment is represented the triumphal entry of Columbus into Madrit on his first ruturn from America, until crowds of gazers at him, the here of the triumph, and at the Indians, who precede the procession with gazers at him, the hard of the triomph, and at the Indians, who preceds the procession with parquets on their upraised arms.

The next panel is occupied with a sadder story. Here Celumbur, in chains, surrounded by a sorrowing population, is about to embark for Europe. Then, the "last seeper of all," accomplishing his "strange, eventfal history," we see him on his deathhed, attend I only by a nun and some pricels, who administer to him the consolations of religion. This some stands housely him. In the religion. Ilis son stards beside him. In thickness of the door itself niches are formed, thickness of the door itself nichel are formed, alcertain intervals, and in these are small whole-length figures of the great contemporaries of Columbus—kings, statesmen, colesiastics, and warriore. In the centre, close to each other, are two such lines of niches, while, on both siles, a single row of figures, one above the other, file up the intermediate space between the nuter edge of the panels and the doorpost. The large bosses, so often seen on doors, are here the heads of those historians who have written on the discovery of America.

The croaments below each niche are heads o animals indigenous to the country, with fruits and thowers entwined, also characteristic of the and flowers entwined, also characteristic of the NewWorld. Every ornament is appropriate, and though they are manifold, there is miconfusion. As there will be no charce of the work being forwarded to the place of its destination for some time to come, it might be possible to induce the authorities to allow it to be sent to England mounthile, where it could not fail to be looked at with the greatest interest. The exhibition of next year night present the desired apportunity for taking such a step. The artist would be glad that as good on occasion offered for making his work known, and the Americans would surely not be unwilling to show the world how munificently they had come forward to erect a grand national monamont. unoting their n hie and truthful defence, as made

A STARLLING DISCOVERY IN THE SOLAR SYSTEM.—The great end of knowledge, which is to find out how little we actually do know, seems to be rapidly approached in our day. The niceteenth century has shown already, more advances in the arts and sciences, then any live conturies of the preceding ages, and we daily gain new justification. The chemist recolving matter into its original atoms, finds age elementary princiin the field as hrave and patrictic as can be found anywhere in the wide world. The District has already given more Union soldiers in proportion to its Union vote than ony District in the Northern States, and before the war closes we will have added to the number already greater than our fair proportion. We have furnished men much more repidly than the Government has been able to arm and supply them with food and clothing; but, though suffering the secret particles derive origin. > The general reader will perhaps understand this discovery better by placing it in very simple language. Most persons are already familiar with the fact that meleors, or shooting stars as they are aften called, are annually visible in great quantities during the month of August on certain nights. On any one of those nights two or three persons, watching the sky, may count from one to two hundred of them in an hour or two. It may now be taken as an accertained fact in astronomy that these meteors, which consist of that surpouts the sur, and is as regular in its ravolution as the earth or any planet. Prof. Newtoo, taking one morning's observation, makes a rough calculation that there are more than 300,-000,000,000,000 of these bedies in the ring.

GEO. D. P. MANTION. Refere OR IVER LUCAS, Local Editor and Reperfor, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1861.

We surrender the larger portion of our available pace this morning to the President's Message. As we at this writing have seen only a fragment of the mestage we of course have formed no opinion concerning the paper. It will be read by everybody with the deepest

In the first column of the first Part of the paper of Dr. Breckinridge, as published in our columns, it is stated, as part of the illustration founded on the "Mountain Empire" that peace cunnot be made except on the basic of a single National Government,-that the "Mountain Empire" embraces 30,000 square miles. It should read 300,000 square miles The mistake-we cannot tell how committedmakes that particular argument appear to be only one tenth part as strong as it really is.

There ere some other proveking and unaccountable typographical errors in the first Part of this great paper, which, like the one noticed above, unfortunately esemped detection until after the whole paper was published it our Weekly. They are, however, such as a critical render will readily take for what they nre, and such es an uncritical reader will hardly discover.

THE KENTICKY SENATORS—James Guthrie, whom some Kenteckians rame for U. S. Samtor, is the live embodiment of the secesion idea in the form of state neutrality. That is not all. Ho was the great feeder of the robels by his railroad, long after the preclamation of the President prohibiting commercial interceurse with them. He was, in the meanwhile, presently malignant toward the North, as he alweys has been excepting when he wanted to self his railway bands in our market, and denounced as "fools" (with certain edjectives profixed which we do not care to repeat) ell Northern statemen and Editors who denied the censistency of state neutrality with Federal covereignty. He was preminently, and at one line with hopes of success, before the Charleston convention as a randicate for the Presiden y, and it was never objected to him that he fell short in Southern ideas, or in subservioucy be fell short in Southern ideas, or in subservieucy to the great Southern party which subsequently chose the Iraitor Breckinridge for its representative men. The North would have n right to feel insulted if the State of Kentucky should such a man tu the Federal Senate, so long as she has a thousand citizen squally able, were honest. has a thousand citizens equally able, more hones

The most pendent, penniless, in the world labores for wages awhile and saves nonrights with which to buy tooks or land for himself. He thus labors on his own account and at length himes another new teginner to help him. This is the just and gener us and prosperous system which opers the way to all, gives hope to all, and can requent energy, progress, and improvament of their condition to all. No men living are more worthy to be trusted than those who till up or on from presistence—none are less inclined to take or to uch aught which they have not honeally earned. Lot them his averso to surrochering a political power which they already processed which, if currendered, will surely be used to close the deer of advancement against each as they and to fix new disabilities and burdens upon them till all of liberty shall be lost.

From the if of taking of our national causus t the Union has produced in a given time, and also what, if firmly maintained, it premises for the feture. There ere already among us those who, of the l'cim be preserved, will live to see it contain 250,000,000. The strength of to day is not altegether fir to-day. It is fir a vast future. The rebols show themselves every day on the opposite side of the river from Camp Hoskins. They are committing all kinds of depredations in Wayne and Clinton counties, which they have in indisputed possession. They have wantonly butchered many sick Union men in their beds and stolen and destroyed much property belong Ing to loval citizens. Many of the Unionists in that region are deserting their homes and making their way to the Bluegrass Region for safety. Owing to the prevailing rains Camp Hoskins and the roads in the surrounding country are in a fearful condition.

MRS. MATT PELL'S MINSTREILS,-We would impress upon the memory of our resilers that tonight the Campbells give an entertainment for the benefit of the Soldiers' Aid Society. Saveral of our military friends have interested themselves in the matter and we feel confident that the Hall will be tilled to its utmost capacity. Aside from the merite of the company, the opportunity a forded to aid n meritorious came should induce our readers to respond liberally to the call. The programme offered is most appropriate to the occasion, and we can promise all who attend an evening pleasantly passed and a consciousness of having contributed to the comfort of those who are defending our country and protecting on homes. ELECTION OF OFFICERS .- There was an election of officers yesterday for Col. Bayles's Cavalry Regiment, encamped at the Fair Grounds, near this city. Jesse Bayles was elected Colonel, Jacob Ruckstuhl, Lieutenant-Colonel, and Messrs. John Kurfus and Levi Chilson, Majors. Mr. John F. Gunkel has received the appointment of Quartermaeter to the regiment. The regiment, it will he seen, is ably officered.

ARRIVAL OF REGULARS .- The steamer Telegraph arrived from Cincinnati last evening with a barge in tow. She brought the Sixteenth regu-Iar infantry, Maj. Sidney Coolidge, live hundred strong, and the Eightennth regular infantry, Col Carrington, twelve hundred strong. This force left Columbus, Ohin, on Monday.
